Alison Muck

Multidisciplinary Artist / Facilitating Producer / Motion & Still Camera

My goal is to stimulate intuitive communication that ripples outward, even across disciplines. I value the junctions of practices, and harbor fascination with still meeting motion, individuals meeting community, and healthful growth perpetuating globally. I see our perception of value and success as directly related to our ability to sustain life here together; where creative solutions, beyond our current constructs, are now required. All that we do ripples outward in effect, so everything I make should exist in consideration of influence.

Currently, I am conducting a series of experiments in relating my individual center of strength to the larger human community. I hope to provoke universal concepts, across borders, thus contributing to principles worthy of our current time. With heed to theory found in subliminal advertising, I can inspire life with decaying materials, intuit the growth of a garden or forest with waste, and instigate new solutions with ancient methods; all by tapping our collective understanding via my own connection. So I hypothesize; if I contemplate such understandings, then can others see them via what I throw out my 'wand'; regardless of whether that wand is a brush, a camera, or an old plastic cup? Discussions resulting from these experimental works, with people of many walks of life, continue to inform my understanding of when, and how, visual art, even abstraction, can tip us to understand and communicate literally.
